Local Options

- A Exclude unreimbursed medical expenses from income.
- B Allow exemption even if a child attending public school lives with owner.
(Only for schools.)
- C Allow exemption for co-operative apartments.

ALLOWABLE INCOME CEILINGS:

The income ceiling (maximum income) for a 50% exemption is $3,000.

A taxing jurisdiction may choose a higher ceiling for a 50% exemption:

- between $3,000 and $24,000 beginning in 2004
- between $3,000 and $26,000 beginning in 2006
- between $3,000 and $27,000 beginning in 2007
- between $3,000 and $28,000 beginning in 2008
- between $3,000 and $29,000 beginning in 2009

Allowed income ceilings have changed on an irregular basis. Only the most recent allowed are shown. There was no change in the allowed ceiling for 2005.

SLIDING SCALE:

A taxing jurisdiction may choose a ceiling (referred to as "M") for a 50% exemption, and it may choose whether or not to adopt a sliding scale (down to 5%.) This differs from the sliding scale options allowed in the Senior's Exemption (RPTL§467.)

The current sliding scales are defined as:

	Income less than ceiling of:	M	Exemption 50%
Income	more than M but less than	M + 1,000	45%
	More than M + 1,000 but less than	M + 2,000	40%
	More than M + 2,000 but less than	M + 3,000	35%
	More than M + 3,000 but less than	M + 3,900	30%
	More than M + 3,900 but less than	M + 4,800	25%
	More than M + 4,800 but less than	M + 5,700	20%
	More than M + 5,700 but less than	M + 6,600	15%
	More than M + 6,600 but less than	M + 7,500	10%
	More than M + 7,500 but less than	M + 8,400	5%
